Sabine Bohlmann is an actress and has been in various films and series on television. She also works as a dubbing artist and has lent her voice to characters like Lisa Simpson and actors such as Vanessa Paradis. Since 2004 she has been writing guides, children's CDs and children's books.

Susanne Straßer studied communication design at the University of Applied Science in Munich, with the focus on illustration and then did an M.A. in art and design in London. She now lives in Munich, where she works as an illustrator for publishing houses and agencies. She was with her work on the list of White Raven 2010/2013.

What should you do, if a cloud is falling down on your head? Of course, you put it into your kindergarten bag and take it home. Clouds are excellent room-mates. You can walk it on leash like a poodle. You can play endless with a cloud: it is the best hideout or the best Cloud-Castle ever. But after a while the cloud becomes too big for your home and you have to find a solution....

New edition of a classic by

Katharina Grossmann-Hensel

In the evenings, when he comes home from work, Dad's shirt smells strangely like fish. He says he's been sailing his pirate ship all day, having wild adventures with his crew, the famous "Five Fishheads". Together, Dad and his crew are the terror of the seven seas. They run around in the desert and keep camels below deck. But Dad says "left" instead of "starboard". Maybe he's not really a pirate after all? A funny and exhilarating story about an imaginative father-son relationship, spiced with seaman's yarns.

Editorial Reviews

From School Library Journal:

Kindergarten-Grade 2— A "stubby" chinned father claims to spend his days not at the office, but rather taming sea monsters, putting on pirate shows for cruise ships, and talking to his parakeet named Petey (in his heart, Petey is a parrot). This gentle, oversize man tells his skeptical son stories of his life at sea and how he rescued the boy's princess mother, who became a pirate after she'd "conquered all her kingdom's dragons." The illustrations are colorful and detailed. Surprises pop up in the painterly pictures, such as a treasure chest on a sea monster's tail and an electric toothbrush on an island. Children will enjoy examining the artwork to catch the little details.—Carrie Rogers-Whitehead, Kearns Library, UT

Christmas is coming!

Anton and Luise disagree about who brings the presents at Christmastime...is it Santa Claus or the Christmas Angel?

Timbo (the Elephant) prefers to stay out of it. He doesn’t care who brings something, as long as there is enough lemonade and cookies. At last, rather than disagree at Christmastime, the three friends decide to find out for themselves who really brings the gifts. Timbo thinks they must travel to the North Pole. Luise and Anton go along with his idea. They hit the road with their Fli-Fla-Mobile. Enroute, they cross over several countries (the Netherlands, Scandinavia etc.) where they catch a glimpse of other special Christmas traditions (Sinter Klaas, Trolls etc.)

Eckhard Eilig follows lives up to his family’s motto, “Up, up and away”, when the young husband moves into a nest of his with his wife Ella. As soon as the nest is perfectly furnished, a worrying creaking sound spreads through the willow tree where his nest is hanging. Teacups clink together and the tree begins to tilt alarmingly. A glance downwards shows: At the foot of the tree, Beaver Bockert is at work. All worked up over the damage to his nest, Eckhard Eilig loses his grip and falls on Bibert’s head. This is the beginning of a long-lasting friendship between their two families, including their children and grandchildren.

In spring and summer, many animals are born all around us. The duck-chicks take to the pond, the little squirrel scampers around the garden and the young rabbits leap up and down the embankment. But it’s not always easy to see all of these animals, especially those that live in the forest. Still, you can find their tracks, such as the forest floor churned up by the wild boar. And there are many stories about them and their young...

Rolli the seal lies dozing on a sandbank, reminiscing about his life, starting from the moment he was born all the way through to adulthood. Young readers will learn just how alone he felt as a young seal pup when his mother went off to hunt. He cried and howled until she came back. Rolli's first attempts at fishing were awkward, but he coped better with the stationary mussels. Then he experienced his first big adventure, as he recklessly floated into the harbor of Hamburg.

When Mozart dreams ...

Mozart's “Serenade No. 13 for Strings in G Major” is one of the world's best-known works. It inspired Heinz Janisch to write a magical, fantastically beautiful story. A white feather, sheet music, and moonlight are recounted by a weary Wolfgang Amadeus, who recalls his childhood as he sleeps: practicing piano under the eyes of his stern father, his long journeys in the post-coach and the concerts in Schönbrunn with Empress Maria Theresia. All this and much more can be heard in the little night music. And – who knows?– Perhaps Mozart even composed this music as he slept...?

Christine Nöstlinger studied in Vienna before she started to write. Since 1970 she published more than a hundred children's and young adult's books. Most of them have been translated in many languages and have become Classics. Apart from many other prizes she was also the first author to win the Astrid-Lindgren-Memorial-Award.

Pudding- Pauli is an extraordinary eleven year old boy: he knows how to cook the most delicious meals and how to solve the trickiest cases like a real master detective! Lea, a girl of his class, thinks that her little jewel, a heart of gold, has been stolen. Pauli and his best friend Rosi have to solve this difficult case together. Pauli and Rosi, the two main characters of the story, are two funny surprising young boys who get involved in a highly amusing adventure topped with good taste for eating and a lot of recipes!

Pudding-Pauli and Rosi solve their second detective case

This time, the amateur detective and keen cook Pauli and his best friend Rosi are puzzled by a series of "dognapping" cases. Somebody is stealing little dogs in their neighborhood and blackmailing the owners, who are all old ladies. After having paid quite a lot of money the dogs will turn up again. The messages of the blackmailer are all signed with "The Big Sorcerer". Soon Pauli and Rosi will find themselves solving this tricky case struggling against a bad cold and keeping up with their kitchen routine.

Andreas Hüging worked as a musician, writer and composer in Hamburg. He published several CDs, wrote songs for movies and toured through Europe and the US with several bands. Nowadays he lives in Bad Bentheim and Berlin, where he writes children's books.

- Brightly colored, cheeky sayings and funny dancing scene
- Revival of the 70s!

Val P. feels like dancing

Valentin is 13, overweight and a something of an outsider at school. One afternoon, he stumbles across one of his father's old photo albums from the 1970s and makes an adventurous decision. Almost overnight, he transforms himself into the disco star Val P. with crazy flares, shrill shirts, polished dancing boots and masses of rhinestone and glitter. After initially being mocking, a highly charged dance video ensures that Valentin suddenly becomes a star. A competition starts up in the class to see who can imitate the most striking and shrillest looks, moves and sounds of the 70s. Val P. is suddenly popular with his secret love, Linda-Eva, and even becomes her dance partner.

Oliver Schlick was born in 1964 in Neuwied, Rheine. After his graduation and civilian service, he studied social work in Düsseldorf. When he is not writing, he collects snow globes and tin toys and listens excessively to The Cure.

Shortly after her sixteenth birthday, Rebecca Quist thinks she is going crazy. She suddenly hears voices in her head – fragments of conversations and snippets of sentences. Is she losing her mind? Then she is contacted by the guardians, a group of wayward but sympathetic lighthouse wardens. To her amazement, they reveal that the voices in her head hold the key to a thousand-year-old prophecy. Before she realizes it, Rebecca is accompanied by grumpy guardians and a boy with an attractive scar as she makes her way to a sleepy coastal village, whose only attraction is an old, battered lighthouse. Could it be that something once happened here that might now have a bearing on the future of the world? There’s no time to waste. The signs are growing, and it seems that there might be a traitor among the guardians...

Natalie is 17 and lives in a modern fairy-tale world where magic is subject to strict rules and works to the highest technical standard. Nevertheless, there is plenty here to make the heart beat faster: Castles, unicorns, giants, and princes to fall in love with. But that is exactly Natalie's undoing. In order to help Prince Kilian out of a dangerous situation, she uses illicit magic and triggers a catastrophe. A giant breaks out of the zoo and ravages half the town. And that is only the beginning. Soon the magical folk are rebelling all around her and, before Natalie knows it, she loses all that is dear and precious to her. She needs to learn that there is only a thin line between good and evil, and decide which side she wants to be on...

On my fifteenth birthday, I was expelled from paradise. I did not go alone. My mother came with me. Better said, my mother left and I followed her. I would have stayed, but Klaus didn't want that. Since his mother's lover threw her out, Michael Polischka's life has definitely taken a turn for the worse. Instead of a villa in Berlin's elegant district of Zehlendorf, he lives in a hovel in Neukölln. And at his new school, Erroll and his Redjackets make him choose: money or terror. Breaking into Klaus' villa seems to be a great idea. But things only really get going when Michael meets the dealer, Hamal. Become a drug mule in return for Hamal's protection? No problem, or is it?

Lan, 14, works under very difficult conditions in a factory that produces branded trainers.

Work days of 16 hours with just one break, in an assembly hall without air condition where temperatures reach 40 degrees and workers get dizzy from the toxic glue they use, are normal. But Lan and her little sister can not quit because their family needs the money to survive.

One day a German work inspector arrives. With the help of his daughter and of Thai, the wealthy factory owner's son, Lan tries to finally improve their situation.

Set in a country, where the consequences of the war in Vietnam can still be seen in everyday life, this is a gripping and moving realistic story.

I'll get you the star from the sky

One cold winter night, the fox knocks on little bear's door. He wants to come into the warm. But the goose and the silken fowl live in the stable and they are afraid of the fox. What now?

So that the fox won't have to remain alone in the cold snow and darkness, bear promises to bring him a star from the sky. The beautiful bright star in the sky above the tree. Bear climbs higher and higher, but he can't reach the star...

A wonderful, tender story about empathy, gentleness and the magic of Christmas.

Antonie Schneider taught in a village school for several years, travelled extensively abroad and worked with a Munich publishing house for a long time. She now lives in the Allgäu foothills of the Alps with her family, is a freelance writer and gives readings, workshops and lectures.

Jana Walczyk, born in Bramsche near Osnabrück in 1989, completed her design studies in Münster before studying applied sciences in Hamburg and working towards a master's degree in illustration. She is a freelance illustrator and graphic artist and has worked on various projects in book and editorial illustration.

Events

Willy Puchner works as a freelance photographer, illustrator and author in Vienna and on his journeys. He became famous with his book “The Penguins’ Longing”, as well as with numerous publications in magazines and newspapers, exhibitions and lectures. He’s deeply involved with written and illustrated material, nature and travel books.

Dive into the intellectual world of an artist: Willy Puchner goes on a journey to write letters – by hand and with great abandon. In the land of fantasy, he can imagine anything he wants. He walks as a budgie through the village, places a message in a bottle into the sea, visits the celebration of letters and stares into a cat’s eyes.

Willy Puchner’s letters to his sweetheart enchant big and small. Every turn of the page gives insight into an unimagined world of desire, delighting with poetry, funny tales and incredible ideas, all while reviving the culture of letter writing along the way.
